Train Hits Truck: Driver Unhurt

Leslie Coburn sustained only slight bruises Saturday morning when the Bethel Inn truck which he was driving was struck by the fast east bound passenger train at the "Richardson crossing" near Skillingston.

The rear end and body of the Chevrolet truck were entirely demolished while the cab was only slightly damaged with no glass broken. The body was thrown about 50 feet by the impact.

At the time of the accident the truck was en route from the Bethel Inn farm to the village.

Glee Club—Public Speaking Program at Gould Academy

The joint program by the Girls' Glee Club and Public Speaking Department of Gould Academy, which was announced last week, promises to be very interesting. It is the first program of its kind to be presented in Bethel, for a long time and a large audience is hoped for.

There are forty-six members in the Girls' Glee Club and their voices blend very nicely in the singing of the two and three part songs which are on the program, all of which will be sung from memory.

Ten members from those participating in Public Speaking at the Academy will give declamations which have, with but two exceptions, been given in the Assembly Room 5th period weekly programs. This will give the townspeople an idea of the kind of training which the Public Speaking Department is giving the students.

The following program is announced:

Attends Foreign Relations Council

Carl Hansman, Gould '33, has just returned from New York where he was one of three Cornellians selected to attend the Council on Foreign Relations, a conference for university men on "A Reassessment of the Traditional Bases of American Foreign Policy" which was held in the Council House, New York City, last week.

The Cornell men to be at the Council are two graduate students: Walter Balderston and George Manner, and C. M. Hansman '37. Besides Cornell, Chicago, Princeton, Rochester, and Yale had men at the conference.

Some of the older men who participated at the conference were: General Frank R. McCoy, American member of the Lytton Commission; Stanley K. Hornbeck, Chief of the Division of Far Eastern Affairs in the Department of State; Admiral William H. Standley, U. S. Delegate to the London Naval Conference, 1935; Colonel Theodore Roosevelt; John W. Davis, former candidate for the Presidency on the Democratic ticket; and other equally distinguished men.

Of the sixteen University men all but five were post graduates or instructors, and of those five, only Hansman was not majoring either in history, economics or government.

Gould Rallies To Win From South Paris, 7-6

Behind the superb two hit pitching of Keniston the Gould Academy nine put on a great rally to overcome a 6-0 lead by scoring five runs in the sixth and two in the eighth. The South Paris team stepped into a lead when Stearns, the first man up, slammed a home run on the second pitched ball. They scored again in the third and three times in the fourth when Swain was batted out of the box. The final counter came in the fifth on an error and a hit, one of the only two hits allowed by Keniston in 5 2-3 innings.

Gould's big rally in the sixth a base on balls, two fielders choices produced two doubles, two singles and a passed ball by Hubbard, Paris catcher. In the eighth McFarland singled, stole second, and scored on O. Robertson's second straight hit. Tucker followed with a scorching triple that put across the winning run.

The fielding gem of the day was left fielder McFarland's running catch of a hard hit foul ball.

Briggs with a homer, a triple, and a single led the visitors' attack. P. Brown with a double and three singles, led the winners' attack. O. Robertson's pinch hit double and another single put the Academy boys in the running. Tucker with a triple and a single and Keddy with two singles also helped to bring up the winners total to 12 base hits.

GOULD LOSES 12-INNING BATTLE TO MEXICO, 7-6

Gould Academy lost a hard fought battle with the Mexico Pintos last Saturday 7-6 after thirteen innings of baseball. The losers hopped into an early lead of 3-1 in the first inning and increased it to 5-1 in the third. From then on the locals could not score altho time and again men were in scoring positions but there was no batting punch to bring them home.

The Pintos kept pecking away with two runs in the fifth, one in sixth and two in the seventh to tie up the score six all. From there on to the 13th the battle waxed hot with both teams playing good ball. Keniston had been pitching good ball but had to be removed in the eleventh because of a sore arm. Swain pitched good ball as a relief hurler, retiring the side in one, two, three order in the twelfth. In the thirteenth, however, a single, a stolen base, and another single brought in the winning run.

Tucker led the local attack with four neat singles while Eddy Robertson came through with a double and two singles. Gaudet was the winner's batting star, coming through with five hits.

$10,000 MORE NEEDED IN STATE CANCER CAMPAIGN

With an excess of 200,000 pieces of literature distributed over a period of a few months, Maine's first annual campaign by the Women's Field Army in the war to combat cancer, has proved most successful, it was announced from the State Headquarters of the Army, Lafayette Hotel, Portland. However, Maine has fallen short of her goal of $25,000 for the treatment of needy cancer sufferers in all parts of the State.

It is conservatively estimated that enlistments in the Women's Field Army and special gifts will bring the fund close to $15,000, with about $10,000 still needed to realize the full provisions of the 1937 program for sufferers of this dread disease. Maine's hope had been to enlist at least 25,000 women in the Army with additional funds forthcoming from special gifts and from men who were invited as contributing members of the organization.

In order to render assistance to cancer sufferers in need of treatment, and to carry on unabated the educational features of the work permanent headquarters have been established by the Women's Field Army in Portland. They will be located, as heretofore, in the Lafayette Hotel and there enlistments and contributions to the fund may be directed.

Records of all applications for financial aid will be kept at headquarters. These applications, it has been pointed out, must be made in the order of their receipt. With the inauguration of the 1937 campaign applications started and already treatment for a number of cancer patients has been approved and ordered under the direction of Mrs. William Holt of Portland, State Army, Maine Division of the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

With the gradual disappearance of the ice from Maine's 2,500 lakes, expectant anglers by the thousand are flocking to the fishing grounds hoping to come to grips with salmon, trout, and lesser members of the finny tribes.

Guides, wardens, and others close to the situation are confident that 1937 will be another great fishing season. If it compares favorably with last year which, in the opinion of the majority of anglers, was the best season in a long, long time, everybody will be satisfied.

Here in the office of the Maine Development Commission, we are often asked by resident and non-resident anglers this question: "Where will we go in Maine to get the best fishing?"

The answer is that there is no one spot in the state, as far as we know, where the fishing can be characterized as "the best."

Fortunately, our lakes, ponds and streams are scattered impartially all over the state. Generally speaking, fish thrive and are caught as readily in one section of the state as in another.

Not that each section, or each lake or stream for that matter, doesn't have its devotees who will solemnly bear witness that the fish are hungrier, strike harder, and are more numerous in their favorite stamping grounds.

That Maine fishing continues to be excellent, and in fact is actually improving as time goes on, is a commentary on the way that man can step in and help Mother Nature improve on her handiwork.

It is a recognized fact that if nothing were done to propagate our fish population that the hundreds of thousands who angle in this state would soon deplete the supply to a point where a few disconsolate hornpout would be about the only survivors of the fish family.

It has been proven that when fish propagate naturally only about two percent of the eggs mature into adult fish. The rest either succumb to unfavorable conditions or are destroyed by predators.

Under artificial propagation, however, about 80% of the eggs are hatched and live to augment the supply in our lakes and streams.

Here in Maine we have the largest and most efficient system of trout and salmon hatcheries and rearing pools in the world. Each year millions of fish large enough to fend for themselves are released in our waters to afford sport for resident and non-resident alike.

Although they are far in the minority, non-residents who fish here contribute far more to the support of this system than do residents, which, when all is said and done, is only fair.

At least non-residents feel that they are getting their money's worth, while residents voted last fall for an increase in license fees so that more conservation and propagation work can be done.

Thus everybody seems to be satisfied, except possibly the fish themselves.

More than two billion dozens of eggs were consumed in the United States in 1935.

Illicit Liquor Rackets Back In Full Swing Again

Big time bootleg rackets, temporarily thrown out of joint by the changing conditions following repeal are in high gear again, according to statements by beverage control officials and executives of the liquor industry, compiled by the National Voice News Bureau.

Estimates of the nation's consumption of bootleg liquor run as high as 50% of the total consumed according to an article in the January issue of the West Coast Brewer, quoting Louis J. Gilbert of the California Distilled Spirits Institute.

"From rather reliable sources," says the Chicago Beverage Dealer, liquor publication, "come estimates that approximately one-third of the liquor sold in the United States is still bootleg. On the other hand we are given to understand that there is very little attempt made to dispose of the illicit liquor direct to the consumer. This can mean only that a goodly share of the goods sold through legally licensed, packaged outlets and served over the bars of legally licensed outlets is spurious."

"With the federal tax at $2," says George M. Stout, California liquor administrator, "and the state tax at 50c a gallon, there is $2.50 in tax per gallon on distilled spirits that the bootlegger dodges on a product that costs 25c to produce. What outlaw would not be interested in $1225 ad valorem regardless of risk."

The United States News, published in Washington, D. C., recently commented: "With repeal, it was hoped the bootlegger would go, but Uncle Sam's battle to put him out of business continues on an enlarged scale with increased federal forces thrown into the fray."

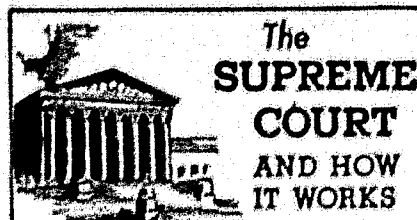

In a recent issue, Business Week commented: "Despite claims from Washington that bootlegging has diminished to 'a mere trickle,' realists estimate that 40% of the national consumption is still from illicit sources."

Calling attention to the prevalence of bootlegging, W. H. Stanton, executive director of Repeal Associates and former head of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, recently issued an appeal to 75 dry organizations to cooperate in helping to get rid of bootlegging and the crime it supports.

In reply, Miss Ethel Hubler, publisher of a national dry organ, declared: "The wet organizations faithfully promised that repeal would eliminate the big scale bootleg racket. This pledge has been broken. An increasing number of huge illicit alcohol rings are being exposed in the various states. Bootleggers are operating on a larger scale today, and with far greater safety than during prohibition."

In a survey of three rural Maine towns, examination of 472 grade school children showed that the average number of dental cavities in these children's mouths was 12. The average number of fillings was less than one.

No Wonder He's Puzzled!!

The Will of the People

By ROBERT MERRILL

THE Supreme court exists to interpret the will of the people as expressed in their basic law—the Constitution.

But the task is not always an easy one. Sometimes the members of the court themselves are not in accord. Sometimes critics outside the court disagree with its findings. That is only natural.

Consider, for example, three of our outstanding constitutional rights: Trial by jury, immunity from unreasonable search, and prohibition upon the taking of life, liberty or property without due process of law.

The language of the Constitution as to the first of these is very clear; as to the second it is less clear, and in the case of the third it is still more vague.

Defining Our Rights.

Since the function of the Supreme court is to protect the individual citizen against the invasion of his constitutional rights, the task of the court is easiest when, in the Constitution, the will of the people has been clearly expressed. Thus a federal statute authorizing a judge to dismiss the jury in a criminal case and himself pronounce the defendant guilty would be a fairly clear violation of the provision that the trial of all crimes shall be by jury.

In case of a warrant to search a citizen's house, there might be plenty of room for difference of opinion whether the attempted search was or was not "unreasonable."

Finally, when the citizen complains merely that the congress is proposing to deprive him of liberty or property without giving him a square deal, the court has the difficult task of determining, upon the facts of his case, whether or not his complaint is well founded.

In all three cases, however, it is important to remember that the language of the Constitution is not the court's language, but the people's. As is stated in its Preamble, "we, the people" wrote the Constitution. As was also provided in the original draft, we, the people, can change its language or provisions. We have, in fact, done so many times, through the process of amendment. And when we make such changes the Supreme court has no choice but to apply, in any case, the rules which the people have written.

The Case of Mrs. Minor.

The Equal Suffrage Amendment offers an interesting illustration of this.

Let's go back into a bit of general forgotten history for an illustration.

In 1872 Mrs. Virginia Minor, of Missouri, was denied the privilege of registering as a voter in that state.

She insisted that she had the right to vote, and brought suit against the officer who would not let her register.

He held that the constitution and laws of Missouri provided that "Every male citizen of the United States shall be entitled to vote." Mrs. Minor replied that denying her the vote was a violation of her rights of citizenship under the United States Constitution, and therefore the provisions of the constitution and laws of Missouri were in this case void.

The appeal went to the United States Supreme court.

After hearing both sides it decided unanimously that while women had always been considered citizens, they had not made one of the privileges of citizenship by the United States Constitution, and that the 14th Amendment to the Constitution did not add the right of suffrage to the privileges and immunities of citizenship as they existed at the time of its adoption.

Amendment Clears Situation.

"If the law is wrong," held the court, "it ought to be changed; but the power for that is not with us."

It held further that under the United States Constitution, "the Constitution and laws of the several States which commit that important trust to men alone are not necessarily void."

Today that situation is changed—because the people decided that women should have the right to vote and said so clearly in the 19th Amendment, adopted in 1920.

Emphatically they asserted: "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex."

Since 1920 any law which deprived a woman of the right to vote would clearly be unconstitutional, and the Supreme court would so declare. What had formerly not existed as a right was made a right by the people, by changing the rules.

More About the Auction

A place for everything and everything in its place!

You of the Congregational Parish and all friends of the church from all points of the compass: again we extend a cordial invitation to help out in this worthy cause, that of restoring our church to its former beauty and dignity.

The committee in charge are making tentative plans for the old fashioned all day auction, of which you have read in a recent edition of this paper, to be held in the early summer.

Do not wait until then to collect the articles you plan to contribute. Start making your list now, while you are doing the customary spring overhauling and cleaning, and put in everything, the beauty or usefulness of which has become a joy of the past and is yet still good and which would be of service to someone else. These things will bless others and make room for new things which are on their happy way. In doing this you will rid yourself of a "cluttering" consciousness as well as a cluttered attic or stable as the case may be.

You all know what auctions are and many times seemingly "trashy" collections bring in dollars to the owners, therefore do not consider for one minute that you have nothing good enough to offer. Anything at all that could be put to any possible use always finds a buyer at auctions. Begin planning now. Books, magazines, playing cards, plants, knick-knacks, furniture of all kinds, even that which the buyer may need to cultivate, bed spreads, bedding, in fact anything from plows to perfumery will be most kindly appreciated and in turn will help make your church and mine "a thing of beauty and a joy forever."

Most Remarkable Ruin

The most remarkable ruin in the West Indies is that of the Citadel La Ferriere at Cape Haitien. Built by King Henry Christophe to repel a threatened French invasion, it stands on the top of a mountain at 2,000 feet elevation. It has been estimated that nearly half a million tons of building material were used in its construction, every pound of which had to be carried up the precipitous side of the mountain. Ten thousand men were continuously employed in its construction and 20,000 more, it is said, died of exhaustion and hardship.

FARMERS' ALLIANCE TO SET UP SPEAKERS BUREAU

The Maine Farmers' Alliance is establishing a speakers' service to enable groups and societies to procure speakers for various occasions, so it was announced by Ray W. Stetson, President of the State organization. The Alliance will be glad to sponsor debates on any desired subject, and to arrange for the speakers. Single speakers will also be available. As the move is not merely to promote the Alliance and is not restricted to farm topics, altho, of course, farm topics will be of special interest to the Alliance leaders. The services of the bureau are not confined to Alliance Locals but are open to the Granges, Lodges, Clubs, and even to committees in charge of such occasions as Memorial Day exercises. The move is made to help educate the public on the issues of the day, to help present various sides of controversial questions and arouse interest in public issues. It is the idea of Mr. Stetson, who is himself an orator and debater, winning distinctions in many contests and on the Bates debating team while in college. Anyone interested should address the Farmers Alliance, East Sumner, Me. There are no charges connected with the services. The idea is to perform a much needed public service.

The Earth's Surface

The superficial area of the earth is 196,950,000 square miles, of which 139,440,000 square miles is water and only 57,510,000 square miles land, according to an authority in the Detroit News. This land area has been subdivided into 33,000,000 square miles of fertile region, 19,000,000 square miles of steppes; and 5,000,000 square miles mountainous.

Hawaii's "Ti" Pleases Taste

Hawaii's ti plant (pronounced tea) is becoming an ever-increasing allurement for the typical American "sweet tooth." The roots, baked underground, become a sweet, brown confection that Americans are taking to as keenly as to factory-made candies.

How Lethal Gas is Made

Lethal gas is a hydrocyanic acid vapor, formed by dropping lumps of a cyanide salt into acid. In using lethal gas for executions a string is run through a tube and then the executioner releases balls of cyanide of potassium into containers of hydrochloric acid under the doomed person's chair. This will send up clouds of cyanide gas which will kill the condemned person almost the instant he breathes it.

Bandit's Blood May Aid in Capture of Criminal

Identifying criminals by drops of blood accidentally left behind during pursuit or at the scene of a crime, instead of by the finger prints which cautious crooks usually fail to leave is suggested editorially by the official Journal of the American Medical Association.

By subdivision of the four main blood types recognized several years ago in connection with tests of blood for transmission, it now is possible to distinguish at least 16 different kinds of blood.

Suppose that a criminal is wounded as he escapes from the scene of a crime or that for some other reason a few drops of his blood are left behind and fall into the hands of the detectives. To which of the 16 possible types of blood these telltale drops belong can be determined by laboratory test. This may not convict the criminal, but it does automatically exclude all suspected persons whose blood is not of the proper type; something which might greatly lighten the labor of detectives in following up clues.

Surgeons with questionable morals have devised more or less successful ways of changing or obsecuring finger prints, but since it is hopelessly impossible to remove all the blood from the body and replace it with some new kind, there presumably is no chance for anyone to change the blood type with which he was born.

The prosperity of a community is measured only by the prosperity of its people, for both must be the same. If the people of a community are easily led by promise of greater values to be obtained away from their home town, and frequently go away from home or send to distant points for goods which are carried in their local stores in anticipation of local demand, they will eventually discover that the lessened demand for some lines of merchandise does not warrant the investment of the home town merchant.

With all due respect to the many reputable concerns who invite business and offer fair values, it is true, that equal values are often obtainable nearer home. Bethel Builders and Boosters take this opportunity to present their wares, but the limited space available each week prevents anything like a complete listing of goods or services. An inquiry directed to a local merchant for some article you little thought to be available here may be a revelation of economy and satisfaction.

Rule 2. The Engineers so elected, shall meet and organize themselves into a Board of Engineers, a majority of which shall form a quorum, and in the absence of the Chief Engineer, the Senior Engineer present shall be the presiding officer; and they may appoint a Secretary and other officers, and make such rules and regulations for their own government as they may see fit, subject to the approval of the Assessors. They shall at all times have the superintendence and control of all the engine and other houses used for the purpose of the Fire Department, and of all the furniture and apparatus thereto belonging; and of the engines and all other fire apparatus belonging to the Corporation, and over the officers and members of the several Companies attached to the Fire Department, and over all other persons present at fires. A committee composed of the Engineers and one delegate from each of the respective Companies may make such rules and regulations for the better government, discipline and good order of the Department, and for the extinguishment of fire, as may from time to time be expedient, the same not being repugnant to the laws of the State, and being subject to the approval and approval of the Assessors.

Rule 3. It shall be the duty of the said Engineers, on the alarm of fire to repair forthwith to or near the place where the fire may be; to take proper measures that the engines and other apparatus be arranged in the most advantageous situations, and duly worked for the effectual extinguishment of the fire; to require and compel assistance from all persons, as well members of the Fire Department as others, in extinguishing the fire, removing furniture, goods or other merchandise from any building on fire or in danger thereof, and to appoint guards to secure the same; and also in pulling down or demolishing any house or other building if occasion require, and further to suppress all tumults and disorders. It shall also be their duty to cause order to be preserved in going to, working at and returning from fires, and at all other times when Companies attached to the Department are on duty.

Rule 4. The Chief Engineer shall have the sole and absolute command over all the Engineers and other persons attached to the Fire Department, and shall direct all proper measures for the extinguishment of fire, protection of property, preservation of order and observance of these rules; and shall be the duty of the Chief Engineer to examine, or cause to be examined, the engine houses, and other fire apparatus belonging to the Corporation, as often as circumstances may render it expedient, or whenever directed so to do by vote of the Corporation, and report the same annually to the Assessors, and oftener if thereto requested. Whenever the engine or other fire apparatus used by the Fire Department require alterations, additions or repairs he shall make report thereof to the Assessors, and he shall also submit his recommendations for making the same together with a careful and accurate estimate of the cost thereof; and, if directed to do so by the Assessors, he shall cause such alterations, additions or repairs to be made. The Chief Engineer shall receive as full compensation for his services an annual salary of $100, unless the number of fires attended by him within the limits of the Corporation shall exceed thirty-five; for each fire which he shall attend in excess of thirty-five he shall be paid in addition to his salary at the same rate as other members of the Fire Department; in order to be entitled to the above salary it shall be the duty of the Chief Engineer to attend all fires, whether or not a general alarm is sounded, if it is possible for him to do so.

Rule 5. In case of the absence of the Chief Engineer, the Engineer next in rank, who may be present, shall execute his office with full powers.

Rule 6. The Fire Department shall consist of the two hose Companies and the Hook and Ladder Company now organized, and of one other Company which shall be charged with the care and efficient management of the fire truck or pumper and its accessories. The Hook and Ladder Company and the Company charged with the management and operation of the fire truck or pumper shall be known as the Active Companies. The two hose Companies now organized shall be known as the Reserve Companies. No person shall be a member of both an Active and a Reserve Company. The two hose Companies and the Hook and Ladder Company shall consist of not less than eight nor more than twelve active members, but the Company having the fire truck or pumper in charge may have a maximum of fifteen active members. The board of Assessors shall designate some person or persons whose duty it shall be to form and organize a fire company which shall be charged with the management, control and operation of the fire truck or pumper and its accessories; and when a Company has been so formed and organized it shall become a part of the Fire Department, and its members shall be subject to these rules and regulations and to all rules and regulations pertaining to the Department. Vacancies in the membership of any Company may be filled and additions thereto be made by a majority vote of the members of such Company; a vacancy shall exist when the membership of any Company shall be less than the minimum number of members required by these rules. A vacancy as herein defined shall be filled within three months.

Rule 7. No person under eighteen years of age or over sixty-five years of age shall be an Active member of the Fire Department, but the members of the several Companies may, when an individual ceases to be an active member because of having attained the age of sixty-five years, or when a member desires to resign from active service, elect such individual an Honorary member of their Company. An Honorary member shall not be required to attend meetings of his Company nor to attend fires, and he shall not receive compensation for so doing. The maximum age limit above given shall not apply to members of the Board of Engineers.

Rule 8. Each of the Companies, so formed and appointed by the Corporation, shall choose a Foreman, two Assistant Foremen and a Clerk, at such times as they may deem expedient, to be approved and warranted by the Assessors, who after being so approved and warranted shall continue in office for the term of one year and until others are chosen in their stead; provided that vacancies may be filled at any regular monthly meeting. They may make such rules and regulations respecting their internal government as they may deem expedient, provided that they shall contain nothing at variance with the laws of the State, or with the By-Laws or Rules and Regulations of the Corporation.

Rule 9. It shall be the duty of the Foreman of the several Companies to see that the fire apparatus of every kind, of which they have charge, is constantly in good order for immediate use; it shall also be their duty to preserve order and discipline at all times in their respective Companies, and to require and enforce strict compliance with the Corporation ordinances, the Rules and Regulations of the Department, and the orders of the Engineers. They shall also keep or cause to be kept by the Clerks of their several Companies, fair and exact rolls, specifying the time of admission, discharge, and the age of each member, an account of all property entrusted to their care, and fair records of the proceedings of the Company. In a book provided for that purpose by the Corporation, which rolls or record books are always to be subject to the order of the Board of Engineers. They shall also make or cause to be made to the Chief Engineer, true and accurate returns of all members and the apparatus entrusted to their care, whenever called upon so to do, and also special returns of all persons admitted by the Company and of all members discharged therefrom, within ten days after such admission, election or discharge, to be by the said Chief Engineer transmitted to the Assessors. It shall be the duty of the Clerk of each of the respective Companies to report to the Assessors, immediately following the monthly meeting of his Company, the number of fires attended by members of his Company, which shall have occurred during the previous month, the names of the persons owning property where fires have occurred and the number of men from his Company in active service at each of said fires. To assist the Clerks of the respective Companies in the performance of their duties, it shall be the duty of each member of a Company attending whenever a general alarm fire occurs to report his attendance to the Clerk of such Company before leaving duty; and it shall be the duty of the person in charge at all other fires to keep an accurate list of the fires attended by him and the names of members in service at each particular fire and make report of the same to the Clerks of the respective Companies at least once a month. Each Clerk shall receive the sum of four dollars per annum for his services.

Rule 10. It shall be the duty of the officers and members of the several Companies, whenever a fire shall break out within the limits of the Corporation, to repair, upon call, forthwith to their respective engines, hose, hooks and ladders and other apparatus, and to convey them in as orderly a manner as possible, to or near the place where the fire may be, and in conformity with the directions of the Chief or other Engineer, to exert themselves in the most orderly manner possible, in working engines, hose, hooks and ladders and other apparatus, and in performing any other duty that they may be called on to do by any Engineer; and upon permission of the Chief Engineer or other Engineer, shall in an orderly and quiet manner return said engines, hose, hooks and ladders and other apparatus, to their respective places of deposit. Provided, that in the absence of all the Engineers, such direction, and such permission may be given by their respective foremen. The members of only the two Active Companies shall respond and be called to service by the first general alarm of fire; the members of the two Reserve Companies shall not respond upon the first general alarm, and members responding to the call shall not receive pay for so doing, but members of the said Reserve Companies may be called if, while a fire is in progress, the Engineer in charge believes their assistance to be required, and in such case they shall be paid at the same rate as if called upon the first general alarm. The Engineers with the approval of the Assessors shall devise a method of sounding alarms so that the members of the respective Companies shall be called to respond in accordance with this rule.

Rule 11. The salary of each member of the Fire Department called to service at a particular fire shall be, for each chimney fire $2, and for all other fires, except grass and forest fires, $1.00 for the first hour or fraction thereof and $.50 for each additional hour or fraction thereof, the time to be computed from the time when the alarm calling such member was given until roll call on return from the fire. Not more than three men, exclusive of the Chief Engineer if present, or if the Chief Engineer is not present exclusive of the person in charge, shall receive pay for attendance at a chimney fire, unless the Engineer or person in charge shall certify in writing to the Assessors the need for a greater number of men at a particular fire; without such certification, if a greater number than three request compensation it shall be the duty of the person who was in charge at a particular fire to determine how many and which of the members shall be paid for their services. All engineers, except the Chief Engineer, shall be paid at the same rate for attendance at fires as members of the several companies.

Rule 12. Once in every month, or oftener, if necessary, the Companies shall meet for the transaction of business, and for the purpose of examining the state of their respective engines and other apparatus, and seeing that the same are in good order and fit for service. Active members of the several Companies shall receive fifty cents each month for attendance at the regular monthly meeting of their respective companies, and failure of any Active member of any Company to attend three meetings in succession, without reasonable excuse filed with the Clerk of his Company, shall be cause for his removal; and he may be so removed by the members of his Company.

Rule 13. It shall be the special duty of the Foremen of the several Companies of the Department to preserve their apparatus from injury as much as possible, to expose it to no unnecessary hazard, to cause it to be worked with judgment and skill, and not to subject it to harsh treatment.

Rule 14. If any member of either of the several Companies aforesaid, shall wilfully neglect or refuse to perform his duty, or shall be guilty of disorderly conduct, disobedience to his officers, or to any Engineer, he shall for each and every offense forfeit and pay a penalty not less than two nor more than five dollars, or may be suspended from duty, in which case he shall not be allowed to wear the badge or other insignia of the Department during the term of said suspension, or may be discharged from the Fire Department by the Assessors. Provided that any member or members of either of the said Companies may, for any of the above offenses, be temporarily suspended by the joint orders of the Chief and one other Engineer, or in case of the absence of the Chief Engineer, by the joint orders of two other Engineers, of whom the next in rank to the Chief Engineer, who may be present, shall be one, until the circumstances can be investigated and the cause determined by the Assessors. Each Company shall have the power to charge to the members a fine of fifty cents for non-attendance at any fire, and fifteen cents for non-attendance at any meetings of the Company, and said fines shall be collected by the Clerk of the Company, and disposed of as the Company shall direct.

Rule 15. All persons present, not members of either of said Companies, are hereby enjoined to obey the directions of any Engineer, given at any fire, and to render their services if required by any Engineer, under a penalty of not less than two, nor more than twenty dollars. And it shall be the duty of the Chief and other Engineers to report to the Assessors the name of every person liable to the penalties provided by this section, and also the names of members of either of the several Companies who shall neglect or refuse to comply with the duties enjoined by these Rules and Regulations.

Rule 16. Whenever it shall be determined, at any fire, by any two or more Engineers, one of whom shall be the Chief Engineer, if present, or in his absence the Engineer next in rank, who may be present, to be necessary to pull down or otherwise demolish any building, the same may be done by their joint orders.

Rule 17. It shall be the duty of the Engineer annually in the months of April, October and November, and at such other times as they deem it necessary, to examine or cause to be examined, premises where fire is at any time kept or used, and where danger is apprehended therefrom; to examine into all shops or other places where shavings or other combustible materials, or where ashes may be collected or deposited, and to direct such alterations, repairs or removal to be made in such case as may be required, whenever, in the opinion of any two of the Engineers, they may be dangerous to the security of the village from fire; and in the case of the neglect or refusal of the owner or occupant of such building to make such alterations, repair or removal, said Engineers may cause the same to be done at the expense of said owner or occupant, and if such owner or occupant shall neglect or refuse to pay such expense, on demand of said Engineers, he or she shall forfeit and pay not less than one nor more than thirty dollars, to be determined by the Assessors; and for such service the Engineers shall receive such compensation as the Assessors may direct.

Rule 18. The Chief Engineer, or in case of his absence, the Engineer next in rank, who may be present, shall have authority at any fire to appoint such fire police as he may deem necessary to preserve order and protect property at such fire, but the authority of such police shall continue only for such fire.

Rule 19. These Rules and Regulations may be amended at any meeting of the Corporation, legally called, provided there shall be inserted in the call for such meeting an article warning the inhabitants of the Corporation that the matter of amendment of these Rules and Regulations is to be considered at such meeting.

Breezes That Blow Over

Oxford County United Parish

Remember that Sunday is Mothers Day. Everybody goes to Church on Mothers Day, thereby honoring Her who has done so much for us. We will be looking for you Sunday, in your place in Church. Here is the schedule for Sunday, and remember it is given in Daylight Saving Time. North Waterford and Waterford, 10 a. m.; Center Lovell, 10:30; East Stoneham, 11:15; Albany (at the Church) 11:30; Young People (North Waterford, 7:30 p. m.

On Monday evening several from the Parish, and all interested are invited, will be attending the Recreational Council that meets for this session at Rumbold Center.

A new feature of our life around here will be introduced following the Circle Supper, Tuesday evening at North Waterford. A Red Cross class will be organized for the study of First Aid. This class will be taught by Miss Frances Rich of Norway, one of our teachers in Lovell. All interested in this project should be at North Waterford Tuesday evening. We believe the time for supper is 6:30. If you get real hungry you might be there at 6:00.

Next week Tuesday, and Wednesday, and Thursday, the Churches of the Parish will be represented at the Annual State Conference of the Congregational Christian Churches at Sanford. We hope several of the young people will be able to attend a special Young People's Banquet Wednesday evening.

Our sympathy goes out to the friends and relatives of Mr. Berry, who passed away last week at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Merle Morse.

Haines—Howe

James Haines and Miss Agnes Howe were united in marriage on Friday evening at the Congregational Parsonage by Rev. Herbert Wallace. They left immediately for a short auto trip returning home late Saturday evening.

Mr. Haines is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Haines. Mrs. Haines is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Howe.

They will reside in the J. H. Swan house at East Bethel after necessary repairs have been made.

New Lighting, Even Bubbles in Color To Beautify Fair

NEW YORK (Special).—None of the scientific discoveries or developments being hurried from laboratories to make the New York World's Fair unusual and thrilling will produce more startling results than the latest technique in illumination.

This statement was issued by Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation, at the inauguration of experiments by the Fair's staff of engineers and illumination experts or their consultants. These men are already at work with quarter-inch scale models of the Fair, types of lighting equipment never before used in comprehensive manner, and utterly new principles never developed practically. They are dealing with everything from fluorescent dyes and colored bubbles to concentrating lamps and floodlight systems.

The plan is not to create spectacular effects in the usual sense of the term, says Mr. Whalen, but rather to create designs in light that will make their appeal through their magnitude and their sheer beauty.
